

SPEAKING: GOOD AND UGLY

The Monster of Dr. Frankenstein. He was created by a scientist from pieces of dead bodies. At first, he was good and only wanted to love and help others. However, his horrible appearance frightened people and they treated him badly. In the end, he became bad.

The Elephant Man. When he was born, he was normal. But after he became ill at five, his body began to change into a horrible shape. He became an attraction in travelling shows. Sometimes he was treated very badly. Fortunately, a doctor began to take care of him. Later in life he became a celebrity. He was even friends with Queen Victoria.

Quasimodo. He was born deformed and ugly. He was abandoned on the steps of a great church. People always made fun of him. He later fell in love with a beautiful young woman. She loved another who was obviously, very handsome. But Quasimodo helped her anyways.

THE ELEPHANT MAN

The elephant man is the only one that existed in real life. His real name was Joseph Merrick and it had the Proteus syndrome. This syndrome makes some body parts grow disproportionately, and this started to happen a few years after his birth. When he was eleven, his mother died and his father remarried with a woman that didn't like him. He was exhibited at a freak show under the name of "The elephant man". Finally, he went to live at the London Hospital where he died at the age of 27 due to asphyxia.